INNOVATIVE MODEL FOR FACILITATING ONLINE LEARNING SUCCESS

Newsletter June 2022

The MOOC4All project has successfully reached its 6month milestone! During this time the partnership has worked towards completing the first project result which is the Social Model for Online Learning. Partners have also attended the first face to face in Cyprus to finalise all administrative procedure and discuss the progress of the project.

ALMOST HERE! PROJECT RESULT 1: SOCIAL MODEL FOR ONLINE LEARNING

As the partnership is finalising the first project result here are some more details about the Social Model for Online Learning. The Social Model for Learning was developed as a learning based on group work and method learning. The partnership intends to develop an aspect of this model for online learning with each partner will elaborate on 5 best practices based on existing learning methods that can be applied to the Social Model for Online Learning. Partners have closely collaborated to explore different practices and methodologies applied in partner countries and worldwide, in order to create a framework that will fully support and encourage students' participation in online learning, avoiding the increasing rates of dropouts.

Face to Face meeting in Cyprus

On the 6th of May, the Cypriot partner – STANDO, hosted the Kick-Off Meeting in Nicosia. Partners met at STANDO's facilities to discuss pending managerial issues and, mainly, the progress of the first project result, exchanging good practices among the partner countries. At the end of this fruitful meeting, partners finalised the practices and methodologies that will be included in the Social Model for Online Learning Framework.

WHAT'S NEXT?

Moving forward the partnership will finalise the methodologies for the Social Model for Online Learning and start piloting them in the partner countries. Before the end of the year, the partnership will reach out to associated educators who will use the methodologies during online classes and provide valuable feedback to the partners. They will then finalise the result by incorporating the feedback from the piloting phase.
