The project is coming to the end

The StarCraft Project after the successful completion of the transnational multiplier events among the partners and the creation of the four Intellectual Outputs is coming to the end. The project aims in developing educational materials in order to enhance the entrepreneurial skills in the field of craft. Its results are addressed to organizations providing VET and C-VET to craft entrepreneurs. We feel fulfilled and excited about the results and the impact that is going to leave.

The project results

IO 1: National Research

The first project output is a Mobile report presented as a form of interactive resource. This process will allow users to search and filter the answers using various criteria. The research was implemented in the partners' countries. The target group was educators and businesses.

IO2: StartCraft training package

The second project results consist of a collection of useful tools, knowledge and methodology that the target groups will need for the creation and operation of their own craft business. This training package addresses VET learners and aspiring craft entrepreneurs.

IO3: Market Training tool

The Market training tool refers to an online available tool. The aim is to support the craft learners during the process of setting up a business based on the real context of the labor market. It is very important that the certain output will provide them with useful practices.

IO4: Teaching notes for VET trainers

The last project output will provide the learners with essential teaching notes. These notes will include resources such as methodologies, bibliography, practices and other material.

4th Transnational Meeting in Belgium

The final Transnational Meeting for the project was held on the 28th to the 29th of September, in Brussels, Belgium, in the premises of the Official Spanish Chamber of Commerce in Belgium and Luxembourg. During the meeting the partners reviewed the implementation of the project and the project results, they evaluated the dissemination activities and planned the next steps in terms of sustainability and continuity of the project results. Finally, the coordinator shared all the useful information for the final reporting!

Partnership

The partners felt exciting about the project's progress

The next steps regard the presentation of the results to the public and to relevant stakeholders and also to proceed the institutional networking for the sustainability of the project results.
